Introduction

The last North American Regional Polar Bear Studbook was published in 2013.

Polar bears have always been popular, charismatic animals in zoo collections. Though they were a flagship species of the arctic environment, there was little connection between the bears in our care and those in the wild. That has changed with the threat of climate change to the wild populations. The charismatic nature of the species make it the perfect educational ambassador to elicit changes in public behavior when it comes to decreasing their carbon footprint. Additionally, partnerships between zoo professionals and field scientists have developed that facilitate ex-situ research projects to help answer in-situ questions.

Reproductive success is still challenging as the population is aging and there is a believed unexpected long term suppression due to birth controlled that was used in the early 2000's when exhibits were closing and holding space was becoming limited

Natural History

Physical Characteristics-

Polar Bears are the largest terrestrial carnivores.

Adult males reach their maximum size at 8-10 yrs of age and average 300-600 kg. with some of the largest recorded at 800 kg.

Adult females usually reach maximum size at 5-6 years of age and average 200-300 kg. Prior to denning up for the winter, females have been found to put on enough fat to reach 500 kg. (Stirling, 1993).

Physical adaptations to Arctic and Marine habitats-

-small streamlined head and neck

-small ears

-keen sense of smell, that allows detection of seal breathing holes under the snow up to a kilometer away

-large, oar-like feed- for swimming and distribution of body weight on ice.

-fur and small vacuoles and papillae on soles of feet for insulation and traction

-small, non-retractable claws with hooked ends that allow grasping of seals

-high digestive efficiency for fat and protein

-ability to store very large amounts of fat when food is plentiful, and metabolize it as needed (Stirling, 1988).

Polar bear fur is hollow and translucent in color. The angle of the sunlight as well as oxidation and staining are factors that determine the appearance of the color of the bear. Their skin is black and only exposed at the nose and foot pads.

Reproductive Strategy-

The usual breeding season for captive and wild polar bears is March-May. Polar bears have delayed implantation; with implantation occurring during late summer to early fall. Implantation of the embryos is influenced by the females' body condition prior to the denning season. If she has not put on enough fat stores to carry her through the pregnancy and cubbing period the embryos do not implant (pers. comm. R. Buchanan, 2006).

In the wild, most cubs are born in November and December and emerge from their dens with their mothers in March and April. Cubs stay with their mothers for 2.5 yrs in most populations.

As in the wild population, the majority of polar bear births in captivity occur in November and December.

Diet-

Wild

The main diet of polar bears in the wild is ringed seals, especially their pups and the bearded seal. Hunting techniques include taking the pups out of their ice birthing dens, pulling them out of the water at breathing holes and hunting them on the ice surface. Other food sources include beluga whales, reindeer, and walrus. Consumption of kelp is commonly seen on the shores as bears congregate waiting for the sea ice to freeze over. Though the true reason for this is still unknown some theories include: nutritional benefit, starting up the GI tract after a long period of fasting, or displacement behavior to decrease aggression between hungry congregating bears.

Captivity

The diet of most captive polar bears in AZA institutions is a combination of a dry biscuit or pellet and fish. Fruits, vegetables, browse and other foods are commonly used as enrichment items. For more information you should refer to The AZA Bear TAG Polar Bear Nutrition Guidelines (Lintzenich et.al, 2004) and the AZA 2009 Polar Bear Animal Care Manual.

Social groupings-

Wild polar bears are solitary in nature. Females and their nursing cubs are the only long term social groupings seen. That being said though, when food is available in large amounts, such as at a whale carcass or garbage dump, there is a large amount of social tolerance between adult bears.

In captivity polar bears have been successfully housed in different social situations (Animal Care Manual, 2009). Currently the most requested social grouping for exhibit by institutions has been 1.2 animals (pers.obs). Intact males have been successfully housed together into adulthood without females present, castrated males and females have been exhibited together long term. Dr. David Shepherdson's multi-institutional stereotypic behavior showed that the more bears there are in a social grouping, the less stereotypic behavior .

STATUS

USFWS Polar Bear Conservation Plan-in 2015 a draft Conservation Plan for polar bears was sent out for public comment. At the time of this studbook's submission, the comment period had ended and we are waiting the final document to be published.

IUCN-listed as vulnerable in 2006 based on likelihood of population decrease of 30% or greater in next 35-50 yrs (PBSG, 2005).

ESA-listed threatened in 2008

Protected under the USFWS Marine Mammal Protection Act (MMPA, 1972).

INTERNATIONAL REGULATIONS AND COOPERATION

Polar bears are found in 5 countries in the circumpolar north: Unites States(Alaska), Canada, Russia, Norway and Denmark(Greenland). They are distributed in 19 subpopulations; with current population estimates of 20-25,000.

At the 2014 IUCN Polar Bear Specialist Group meeting, the PBSG renewed the conclusion from previous meetings that the greatest challenge to the conservation of polar bears is ecological change in the Arctic, resulting from climatic warming. Evidence of these environmental changes, in conjunction with a re-evaluation of the polar bear subpopulations, have led PBSG to list 3 of 19 subpopulations as currently decreasing, six as stable and one as increasing. For nine, data were insufficient to assign a trend. (see chart pg.8).

National Regulations-

USFWS

For questions related to the permitting or transfer of polar bears, or their biological samples (ie. blood, body parts, gametes) either within the United States or for import or export contact USFWS:

Division of Management Authority, 4401 North Fairfax Drive, Room 700, Arlington, Virginia 22203, PH 703-358-2104, FX 703-358-2281, email: managementauthority@fws.gov.

USDA-

Polar bears are covered under the Animal Welfare Act in the marine mammal section Subpart E 3.100-3.118(AWA, 2005). Regulations regarding such things as water quality, minimum exhibit and pool sizes can be found there. It should be noted that these are the minimum standards enacted by law. Recommended guidelines for polar bear exhibitry and care can be found in the 2009 AZA Bear TAG Polar Bear Animal Care Manual..

Animal transfer-

You do not have to notify APHIS of the move, although they do appreciate it. If FWS has a concern, they will contact APHIS directly.

When a move/transfer occurs, the parties do have to meet or exceed AWA requirements for transport. These are generally found in the AWA regulations and standards (Title 9, Code of Federal Regulations, Chapter 1, Subchapter A, Part 3, Subpart E) in sections 3.112-3.118. These can be accessed from their web site at www.aphis.usda.gov/ac under "publications." However, it should be noted that the web address and the look of the web site are changing to meet USDA and APHIS formats , and the new web site will be at www.aphis.usda.gov/animal_welfare. Key transport issues to remember are that for transports >2 hrs, a transportation plan, signed off by the attending vet and animal care (facility) staff, is needed, and that an attendant is required for every transport (Kohn, 2007. pers. comm.).

IUCN Polar Bear Specialist Group-Summary of polar bear population status-2014

agreed upon Jan 20, 2015-PBSG website:pbsg.npolar.no

2014 SUBPOPULATION	SUBPOPULATION SIZE				SUBPOP. TREND		SEA ICE METRICS		HUMAN-CAUSED REMOVALS: 2010-2014				COMMENTS, VULNERABILITIES AND CONCERNS
	ESTIMATE	95% CI	YEAR	METHOD	Relative to historic level (25-year past)	Current (12-year centered on present)	Change in spring ice retreat/ Change in fall ice advance (days per decade)	Change in summer sea ice area (percent change per decade)	5-year mean		Last year
									Pot	Act	Pot	Act
Arctic Basin	Unknown				DD	DD	-3.2/8.0	-6.7
Baffin Bay	1546	690-2402	2004	PVA (based on physical C-R estimate from 1998)	DD	D	-7.3/5.2	-18.9	144	149	132	137	Harvest, current and projected habitat decline, declining body condition. Population estimate for 2004 is simulated from vital rates measured in 1997. 100% of PVA runs resulted in subpopulation decline after 10 years. Subpopulation is currently being reassessed using genetic capture-recapture.
Barents Sea	2644	1899-3592	2004	Distance sampling	DD	DD	-16.6/24.2	-16.0	NA	2	NA	3	There has been no hunting in the Barents Sea area since 1973. Recent habitat decline has in many years led to late sea ice formation in autumn around some important denning habitat, in such years few females den in these areas.
Chukchi Sea	Unknown				DD	DD	-3.4/4.2	-18.8	58	30 (US) + Ca. 32 (Russia)	58	23 (US) + Ca. 32 (Russia)	Precise subpopulation size estimates historically not available; coarse estimate of 2,000-5,000 from 1990s based on maternity den surveys in Russia. U.S. capture-recapture research conducted spring 2008-2011 indicates good body condition and reproduction, suggesting capacity for positive natural growth despite sea ice loss. Observations of low cub production and maternity denning on Wrangel Island 2004-2013 suggest concern for reductions in natural growth. Uncertainty in subpopulation size and the number of human-caused removals in Russia results in uncertainty in trend. Observed loss of sea ice habitat is among the largest in the Arctic and the duration of the ice-free season is projected to increase. Potential negative effects of industry and shipping are a concern. Quota of up to 20 bears per year, to be shared between the U.S. and Russia, adopted by U.S.-Russia Polar Bear Commission in 2010. In the U.S., legal subsistence harvest continues as the U.S. works to implement the quota. In Russia, harvest remains illegal. Information on human-caused removals is from village interviews conducted 2010-2012. Current removal levels are thought to be significantly lower than in the late 1990s.
Davis Strait	2158	1833-2542	2007	Physical C-R	DD	S	-7.7/9.7	-19.9	99	99	103	105	Some removals from West Greenland assigned to D5 may be bears from EG that have moved around the southern coast of Greenland. Low reproductive and recruitment rates may reflect negative effects of greater densities or worsening ice conditions.
East Greenland	Unknown				DD	DD	-6.2/5.5	-6.5	62	63	64	65	Current and projected habitat decline, no abundance estimate or growth rate. TEK suggests increase in numbers (meeting with hunters in 2011 both in Ittoqqortoormit and Tesileq).
Foxe Basin	2580	2093-3180	2009-10	Distance sampling	NR	S	-5.3/5.8	-14.2	97.8	104	71	85	Bear-human interactions; potential for increased shipping activities; current and projected habitat decline; there are no estimates of vital rates. Harvest appears to be sustainable.
Gulf of Boothia	1592	870-2314	2000	Physical C-R	NR	S	-6.9/8.3	-12.2	60	58	58	52	Current and projected habitat change may affect productivity of ecosystem. Subpopulation has high vital rates and low harvest. New assessment planned to begin in 2015.
Kane Basin	164	94-234	1994-97	Physical C-R	DD	D	-7.2/5.6	-12.2	11	6	11	5	Harvest, current and projected habitat decline. 100% of PVA runs resulted in decline after 10 years. Subpopulation is currently being reassessed using genetic capture-recapture. TEK suggests increase in numbers.
Kara Sea	Unknown				DD	DD	-9.2/7.6	-18.6		NA		NA	There has been no hunting in the Kara Sea area since 1957. Recent habitat decline has in many years likely led to the displacement of polar bears from foraging habitats during the ice-free season.
Lancaster Sound	2541	1759-3323	1995-97	Physical C-R	DD	DD	-5.6/5.1	-7.7	93	84.8	102	83	Demographic data are >15 years old. Selective hunting for males in the harvest decreased due to the U.S. import ban and listing under the U.S. ESA. Harvest, projected habitat decline, possible increase in shipping activities; TEK suggests the subpopulation is stable or increasing.
Laptev Sea	Unknown				DD	DD	-8.2/6.5	-14.7		NA		NA	There has been no hunting in the Laptev Sea area since 1957. One of the main recent concerns is increasing uncontrolled activity of groups digging for mammoth ivory on the Novosibirsk Islands what leads to high potential poaching.
M'Clintock Channel	284	166-402	2000	Physical C-R	R	I	-3.9/5.8	-9.0	3	3	3	3	New reassessment of subpopulation began in 2014; potential for shipping activities if multiyear ice declines. Population is currently managed for recovery with harvest below sustainable rates based on the last population estimate. PVA analyses based on physical mark-recapture data from 1998-2000 suggests the subpopulation should be able to increase at present harvest levels. TEK reports the subpopulation is currently increasing.
Northern Beaufort Sea	980	825-1135	2006	Physical C-R	NR	S	-5.8/3.3	-5.9	65	37.4	65	43	Reported harvest data for period 2009-2013 due to boundary shifts between SB and NB. September sea ice extent has declined significantly from 1979-2009. Further loss of habitat could result in declines in vital rates. TEK suggests subpopulation stable.
Norwegian Bay	203	115-291	1997	Physical C-R	DD	DD	-1.3/4.3	-2.3	4	2.2	4	3	Initial PVA simulations resulted in subpopulation decline after 10 years, however vital rates from 2 subpopulations were pooled for the analyses. Projections of decline were also high because of small sample size. Current data are >15 years old; small subpopulation. TEK suggests the subpopulation is stable or increasing.
Southern Beaufort Sea	907	548-1270	2010	Physical C-R	R	D	-8.7/8.7	-20.5	76	35.6	73	42.3	Reported harvest data for period 2009-2013 due to boundary shifts between SB and NB. Current and projected habitat decline, declining body condition, declining survival rates.
Southern Hudson Bay	951	662-1366	2012	Distance sampling	NR	S	-3.1/4.1	-11.4	60	62	60	56	Harvest, current and projected habitat decline, declining body condition, declining survival rates.
Viscount Melville	161	121-201	1992	Physical C-R	DD	DD	-4.7/7.4	-6.1	5.6	7	6	7	Subpopulation currently being reassessed. Low densities of ringed seals and polar bears were observed during capture-recapture programs (2012-2014).
Western Hudson Bay	1030	754-1406	2011	Distance sampling	R	S	-5.2/3.6	-16.3	22.6	23.2	28	32	Concerns include harvest, projected habitat decline, declines in body condition, and lower productivity compared to adjacent SB and SH subpopulations. Decline in size of subpopulation from late 1980s through late 1990s/early 2000s was linked to reduced survival due to timing of sea ice breakup. Recent analysis indicated stability in subpopulation size from 2001-2010; a period during which there was no significant trend in timing of sea ice breakup or recapture. This analysis confirmed continued linkage between female survival and sea ice conditions. TEK suggests that subpopulation is increasing.
